MRS. LOUIS B. MULLGARDT. Who is spending six months in England.

concert last Thursday night was minus many well-known persons in the boxes. The remainder of the house, however, did not suffer, and I never saw a more enthusiastic audience, especially after Mme. Hinchliffe's "Sweet Genevieve" ballad. Here are a few jottings about other people that you know: Mr. and Mrs. Albert and Lambert will sail for Paris about the 15th for a quick trip of six weeks. Mr. Lambert's business interests demand a Eu-ropean visit once each year, and Mrs. Lambert will go over for some new frocks and a little faunt on the Riviera.

Mrs. Northrop McMillan is in town with her London friend, Mrs. Adams. They will try to "do" the country in three weeks, as a friend facetlously remarks, and are now on the point of taking the McMillan private car for Florida. On their return North they will stop in the National Capi-tal, and sail for England, which Mrs. McMil-lan new regards as home, in six weeks. Mr. McMillan has already started on his Abysminian expedition. Mrs. William McMillar who went abroad last fall, is now touring Spain with friends. Mrs. Thornburgh has been invited to join Mrs. Northrop McMillan's car party, but at last accounts had not

Mr. E. C. Simmons and his niece, Miss Hattle Glenn, are established at Miami, Pia., where they spend a part of every win-ter. Mrs. Simmons will not go down. Mr. and Mrs. William Funsten and their children are in the Bahamas, and were regis-tered at a Nassau hotel last week. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mullgardt have ar, and Mrs. Louis Mullgardt have reached England, and are now settled in Manchester, where Mr. Mullgardt will de-sign a hotel faterior that is to cost several millions of dollars. Mrs. Mullgardt spent a fortnight with the James Stewarts on her arrival, while her husband went to Man-chester to prospect. They are now estab-lished at a delightful apartment that permits of light housekeeping in the cozy Eng-lish way, and are beginning to "take no-tice," the first homesickness and newness of things having worn off. Their address is "St. Peter's Chamber, St. Peter's Square Manchester," which certainly does sound British, don't you know. Mr. and Mrs. "Larry" Mauran, Miss Catlin and their party will go to Palm Beach next week, with a Mardi Gras stop, as in previous seasons. I trust that their hotel experience will not be the same as last year in New Orieans. The inconveniences they were obliged to encounter, in spite of pre-vious engagement of rooms, etc., was some-vious engagement of rooms, etc., was some-thing quite terrifying.

The Zach Tinkers will, as usual, try Paim Beach for their spring outing, but do not expect to go South until Mr. Tinker returns from New York, which will be in a fort-night. Miss Carrie Tinker will, of course, pe of the party. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar French of Webster went to Ormond, Fla., Tuesday and will stay until the buds are bursting on their suburban trees.

Mrs. Charles Hills and her little son have returned from a Feoria visit of some length and are stopping at one of the uptown hotels before going to California. They will start westward about the 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Smith will set ant, and are, runnington Smith will set all for Florida this week, in hopes of being benefited by warmer breezes. Mrs. Smith has not been in the best of health for several months. To California will go Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kauffman, making Pasadena their objective point. They ex-pect to depart this week. Major and Mrs. George Goddard will go to Lower California the middle of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Duthell Cabanne have planned a fine jaunt to Texas, New Orleans for Mardi Gras, and thence to Pass Chris-tian, where they will shoot snipe and duck for awhile. Mrs. Cabanne has a most coquettish corduroy outfit, and as her marks-manship is unquestioned, they expect to have all sorts of fun and to bag all sorts

The season has developed several pleasant The season has developed several pleasant little fads in the matter of hairdressing among well-known girls. The tiny half wreath for evening dress is tremendously pretty, and when becoming, as it is to most faces, gives a piquant and dressy finish to a decollete costume or even a high-necked dinner gown. It is perfectly appropriate with the last-named. I saw Mrs. Albert Lambert surpling effer one of the recent conbert supping after one of the recent con-certs—the last Apollo. I believe—in a white lace and crepe gown cut high; while in her hair was a dear little wreath of blue forget-me-nots. Emily Catlin and Emily Wickham frequently wear the wreaths of small pink roses in their hair; and both appeared in an Odeon box the other night with these wreaths of exactly the same small pink tightiy-closed roses.

Mrs. David Calhoun wears a coronet of green folinge often, alternating with one green folinge often, alternating with one of white rosebuds that is especially good on her very dark hair. Mrs. Henry Koehler, Jr., wears her wreath across the back, just under a loose coll of her soft brown hair. Irene Catlin has taken to wearing her hair twisted in rolls over the ears and then colled very low on the neck, like her aunt, Mrs. George Leighton. It is most becoming to both women. Virginia Wright has worn her nut-brown locks in this manner all season.

With the waning season come thoughts of winter resorts.

Many rumors are in the air, and persons whom one knows are leaving daily. That large St. Leuis party of the Rumseys, the Chappells, the "Joe" Millers, the Ramsey girls, the Semples, in all about fifty, has left rather a gap, and the Choral-Symphony concert last Thursday night was minus a common meeting ground for all the world. The Book of Job and Song of Solomon were noticed as dramatic compositions; the latter as a sacred opera or lyric ideal, Oriental in character. Beautiful passages were read from the different books. The discussion closed with the influence of the Bible in art. "A Glance at Homer" is the topic Thursday at Hotel Beers, promptly at 10:30 o'clock.
